

The British Council SIE Fund Project Steering Committee, 2018-2019

Background

The British Council in partnership with the Social Innovation and Entrepreneurship Fund (SIE Fund) is launching a new project:

BRICKS (Building Research Innovation for Community Knowledge and Sustainability).

The project is a pilot that will work in partnership with the academic community in Hong Kong to support and promote the growth of social innovation both as a culture and leadership approach and as a field of research and action.

The project will be managed by a consortium of organisations led by the British Council consisting of The Good Lab, the Social Innovation Exchange (SIX) and strategic advice from Professor Alex Nicholls, Saïd Business School at the University of Oxford.
